Tom Mulcair: fighting for you

Our party is entering an exciting new chapter. After an invigorating leadership race that saw a record number of Canadians flock to our party, Tom Mulcair has been elected leader of the Official Opposition—and leader of Canada's New Democrats.

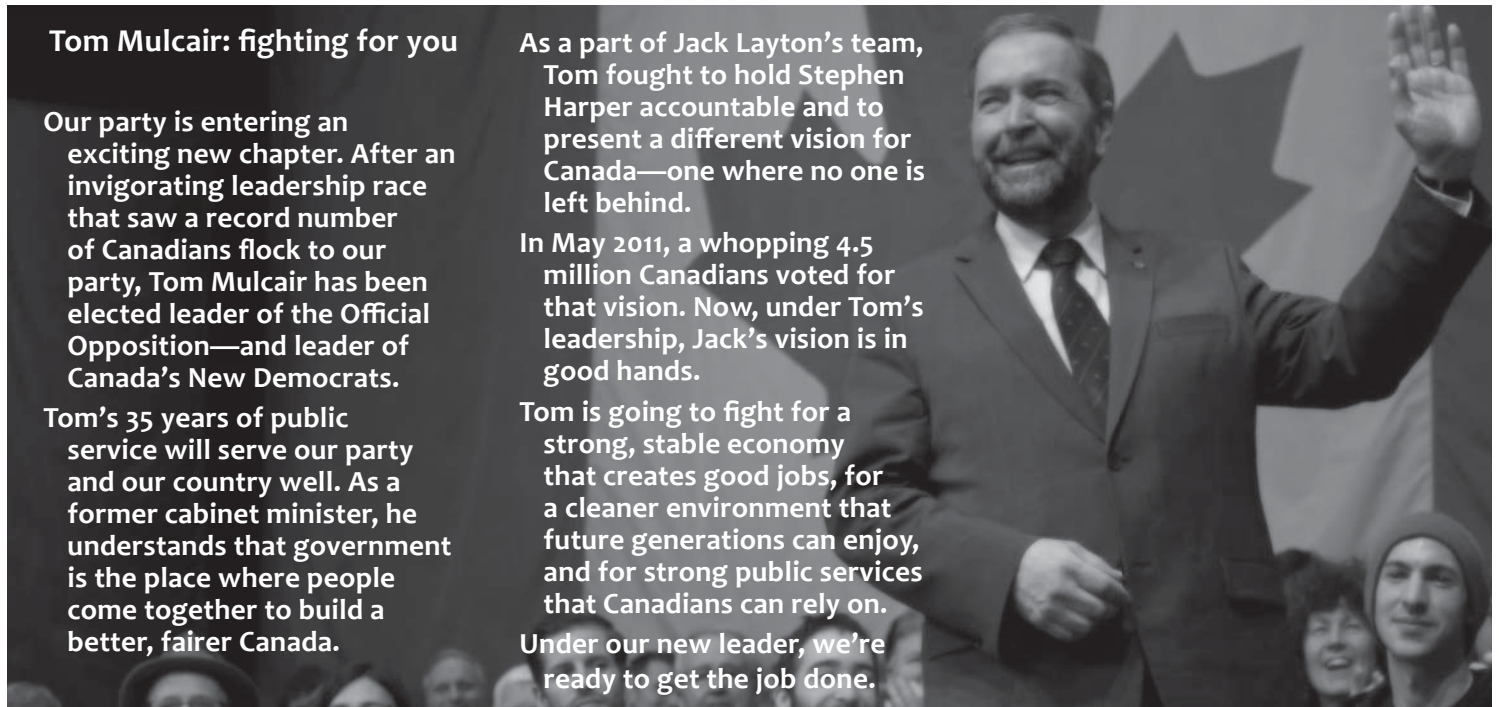

Tom's 35 years of public service will serve our party and our country well. As a former cabinet minister, he understands that government is the place where people come together to build a better, fairer Canada.

As a part of Jack Layton's team, Tom fought to hold Stephen Harper accountable and to present a different vision for Canada—one where no one is left behind.

In May 2011, a whopping 4.5 million Canadians voted for that vision. Now, under Tom's leadership, Jack's vision is in good hands.

Tom is going to fight for a strong, stable economy that creates good jobs, for a cleaner environment that future generations can enjoy, and for strong public services that Canadians can rely on.

Under our new leader, we're ready to get the job done.

Speak out on the Conservative budget

Conservative budget fails Canadians

After promising to focus on job-creation, Stephen Harper has delivered a budget that recklessly cuts vital services.—breaking a clear Conservative promise.

What Stephen Harper said: “We have been very clear that as we reduce the deficit, we are not cutting transfers to provinces or individuals. We do not intend to cut benefits for seniors.”

—Stephen Harper, Hansard, January 30, 2012

“We will not cut pensions. We will not cut transfers to the provinces for major programs such as health care.”

—Stephen Harper, Hansard, June 7, 2011

What Stephen Harper did : The 2012 Conservative budget recklessly cuts public services—including pensions and health care.

- Health care cuts: A new funding formula short-changes provinces by $31 billion, which will lead to longer wait times and fewer doctors.
- Pension cuts: This budget will force seniors to work two more years—to the age of 67—before they can receive Old Age Security (OAS).

What now? New Democrats are holding the Conservatives to account—to their promises, and to Canadians’ real priorities. We’re fighting to create quality jobs and to protect the services you rely on.

And we won’t stop until the job is done.

PETER IN THE HOUSE ~ on Budget 2012

Starting in just a few years, the dismal decades under the Conservatives, we will see an increase in the retirement age, which will mean more seniors living in poverty. More seniors are living longer.

Canadian families deserve better than the budget that has been tabled tonight.

They deserve better than the cuts in services, cuts we have already seen from the government in long-term health care funding, and now cuts to retirement security, and cuts to services that Canadian families depend on every day.

Mr. Speaker, you know and we all know in the NDP caucus, 102 strong, that the Canadian public is going to take a very dim view of the dismal decades that the government has in store for it in the coming years.

There is no doubt we are going to have a very thorough debate on the floor of this House of Commons around this budget.

New Democrats will be standing up for Canadian families.
